Data such as this is used to add a new layer of tactical intrigue, variety, and fluidity. How does “Pick-Up Play” work? To demonstrate “Pick-Up Play,” we’ve got Giuseppe Gentiloni on the Creative Assembly team to introduce you to two teams. The first team is EA-backed Spain, and they’ve already been unveiled in FIFA 17. The second team is England, and we’ve picked a particularly exciting tactical matchup for you to see the new technology in action. Spain’s #11 plays a one-two with #19, and the ball comes to #3, who floats forward and heads in on goal. Spain’s #31 is defending the left flank, and Italy’s #31 is pressuring him from behind. Italy sends in #9, and he wraps up the header for a 1-1 lead! Good momentum from Italy, and Spain’s defense is getting caught out all the time now. Now, both players are in the penalty area.
